

How to Implement Risk Management Strategies During the COVID-19 Pandemic

JUNE 30, 2020

10:30 AM - 12:00 PM

Free

TARGET AUDIENCE:

Administrators, Corporate, Management Staff

During these unprecedented times, senior living facilities need to take action now to help avoid and prepare for claims that may arise later. This webinar will provide insight into what plaintiffs' attorneys have been focusing on when deciding to take new cases and will discuss lessons learned from recently filed COVID-19 litigation. Practical tips will be provided to establish best practices for facilities seeking to avoid risk and exposure, especially as nursing homes and assisted living communities begin to relax restrictions.

SPEAKER:

Peggy Kozal is a partner in the Denver office of Gordon & Rees Scully Mansukhani and focuses her practice on healthcare regulatory and compliance matters in the Assisted Living space. Ms. Kozal frequently provides legal guidance to identify critical problems and to apply compliance principles that minimize risk and promote client objectives. She has an extensive litigation background in administrative, state and federal courts, which reinforces her ability to advise Assisted Living clients on best practices in day-to-day operations and in areas of emergency/crisis management and incident response programs. Ms. Kozal regularly provides counsel in Medicare and Medicaid certification and reimbursement, as well as provider contracting, licensure and accreditation.
